

Heart Transplant Support Group ...

Denise Redeker · Oct 25, 2020 · 🗣️

Hi Fellow Warriors! I've started a Northern California only (so far) nonprofit to help others going through the heart transplant adventure afford their post transplant housing (Heartfelt Help Foundation). My question to you, if you had your transplant at Stanford, CPMC, or UCSF within the past 5 years or so, how did you afford your post transplant housing? Did your insurance cover it? Or a portion of it? Were you able to stay at hospital provided housing? What did that feel like for you? I think that's all my questions! Feel free to answer here, or private message me. Also, to the admins, if this isn't in keeping with the rules, feel free to take this down. NOT asking for donations here, just some information for a paper I'm writing. Thank you so much!

Like

Comment

Send

8

All comments ▾

We had ours at [redacted] became homeless in the process and got no help after discharge. They tried to put us in a homeless shelter but with my daughter's condition we couldn't risk that so ended up in our car. Were in Wyoming now with a high school friend but it was an absolute nightmare. [redacted]

Comment as Denise Re...

